ADJOURNMENT

On motion of Senator Aikin the Senate at 1:57 o'clock p.m. adjourned until 10:30 o'clock a.m. tomorrow.

SECOND DAY

(Wednesday, January 15, 1975)

The Senate met at 10:30 o'clock a.m., pursuant to adjournment, and was called to order by the President.

The roll was called and the following Senators were present: Adams, Aikin, Andujar, Braecklein, Brooks, Clower, Creighton, Doggett, Farabee, Gammage, Hance, Harrington, Harris, Jones, Kothmann, Lombardino, Longoria, Mauzy, McKinnon, McKnight, Meier, Mengden, Moore, Ogg, Patman, Santiesteban, Schwartz, Sherman, Snelson, Traeger and Williams.

A quorum was announced present.

The Reverend George M. Ricker, University United Methodist Church, Austin, Texas, offered the invocation as follows:

O You who are the Creator and Sustainer of life, You have placed us in responsible relationships with one another and with our society; and You have so ordered the world that we find our lives not in seeking them but in giving them up in service.

We gather as this legislative body, aware of work to be done and problems to solve, yet conscious of our own inadequacies. We are grateful that Your call is not to adequacy but to faithfulness. Keep us alert and sensitive to one another and the people we serve. Give us the courage to hold on to our understanding of the truth but not too desperately so that we can grow in the give and take of discussion and debate.

We praise You for this day, this session of the legislature, our colleagues, and the people who hold us accountable, and all the resources available that will help us meet the issues of the day before us. We commit all that is and will be to Your affirming and enabling love, through Christ our Lord. Amen.

On motion of Senator Aikin and by unanimous consent, the reading of the Journal of the proceedings of yesterday was dispensed with and the Journal was approved.

Governor and Mrs. Briscoe, Speaker and Mrs. Clayton, Mrs. Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. Nugent, distinguished state officials, members of the 64th Legislature, ladies and gentlemen.

Today we are gathered here in Joint Session to honor the memory of one of the greatest Texans of all times.

Some day, I believe, historians will say he was one of the greatest Americans of all times.

The Presidency of Lyndon Johnson was marked by the greatest outpouring of creative and innovative legislation this nation has ever seen...legislation that touched the lives of every man, woman and child in America...legislation for the people.

He understood the people because he was one of them. Though he rose to fame and fortune, he never forgot his humble beginnings. He never forgot those he left behind, because in a very real sense he didn't leave them behind. He brought them with him--every step of the way.

He was uniquely a product of his Texas environment.

The populism of the Texas frontier was as much a part of him as the air he breathed.

The plight of the small farmer and rancher, trying to eke out a living from the unyielding caliche soil, gave him a sense of compassion that remained with him to his dying day. He used to like to tell the story of the farmer in the hill country who once remarked that the great depression of the 30's wouldn't have been so bad if it hadn't come right in the middle of hard times.

Even the State Legislature, which honors him today, left its indelible mark on him and his philosophy.

Lyndon Johnson never served in the Texas Legislature, but his father, Sam Ealy Johnson, Jr., did--from 1905 to 1909, and from 1917 to 1923. And it was through his father's service here that Lyndon Johnson learned his first lessons of politics.

"I remember," he once remarked, "what my father said to me about public service when I was a little boy walking around, following him barefooted and standing there in the hot sand of Blanco County...He used to say to me 'Son, if you are to speak for people, you must know them, and if you are to represent people, you must love them.'"

Lyndon Johnson learned that lesson well. He did get to know the people and he did grow to love the people--and he represented them faithfully and well.

It was here, in this chamber, listening to such men as Wright Patman--his father's desk mate--that the fire of public service was kindled in him.

It was here, in this chamber, observing his father's unrelenting fight against the Ku Klux Klan, that he developed his first understanding of what the crippling legacy of bigotry could do to his fellow men.

"My father fought (the Klansmen) many long years ago in Texas," President Johnson once said, "and I have fought them all my life because I believe them to threaten the peace of every community where they exist. I shall continue to fight them because I know their loyalty is not to the United States of America but instead to a hooded society of bigots."

Later as a young school teacher in South Texas, he saw first-hand the results of such discrimination. The nation will never forget his remarks to a Joint Session of Congress in 1965:

"My first job after college was as a teacher in Cotulla, Texas, in a small Mexican-American school," he said. "Somehow you never forget what poverty and hatred can do when you see the scars on the hopeful face of a young child...I never thought then, in 1928, that I would be standing here in 1965. It never even occurred to me in my fondest dreams that I might have the chance to help the sons and daughters of those students and to help people like them all over this country."

"But now I do have that chance--and I'll let you in on a secret: I mean to use it."

And he did use it.

He took office in the middle of the longest sustained period of prosperity this nation has ever known. A lesser man would have been content to preside over the status quo. But Lyndon Johnson was not a status quo man. He ripped the glittering cellophane wrapper from around the nation and showed us what was really under it.

He showed us poverty, illness and hunger in the midst of affluence.

He showed us illiteracy and disease in city ghettos and rural hollows alike.

He showed us the plight of a full 20 million Americans who were treated as second-class citizens because of the color of their skins.

He showed us in graphic and sickening detail the ravages man had made on his environment: the filth in our air, the wastes in our lakes and rivers and the junk in our countryside.

And he did more than show us. He demanded that we face up to these problems and do something about them.

Because of Lyndon Johnson, black and brown Americans now walk proudly to the polling place, where once they faced intimidation, fear and rejection.

Because of Lyndon Johnson, every young American now has the opportunity for all the education his mind can take, regardless of the income of his parents.

Because of Lyndon Johnson, every American can now face the terrifying prospect of sickness in old age, at least with dignity and serenity, thanks to Medicare.

Because of Lyndon Johnson, the stark fact of American poverty is an inseparable part of our political dialogue. We may not have wiped poverty out, but we will never again be able to ignore it.

Because of Lyndon Johnson, American consumers are better protected than ever before from unwholesome meat and poultry, dangerous toys and products, and unscrupulous lenders.

Because of Lyndon Johnson and Lady Bird Johnson--who honors us with her presence today--America is a cleaner and more beautiful place to live....

Perhaps Lyndon Johnson's Presidency was best summed up by his Secretary of State, Dean Rusk, at the late President's memorial service at the United States Capitol in January of 1973. Here is what he said:

"More than a thousand years ago, in a simpler and more robust age, perhaps we might have known him as Lyndon the Liberator, for he was determined to free our people in body, mind and spirit."

Well, his determination was translated into action...and action into programs. His legacy is written large in the laws of the land--and we are a better people because of it.

The President then presented Mrs. Lady Bird Johnson, who addressed the Joint Session and unveiled the bronze bust of the late President Lyndon Baines Johnson, which will be placed in the Lyndon Baines Johnson Foyer of the State Capitol in accordance with the provisions of S.C.R. 112 of the 63rd Legislature.

The Speaker then presented Mrs. Janey Briscoe, Mrs. Diana Hobby, Mrs. Delma Clayton, Mr. and Mrs. Pat Nugent and their children, Lynn and Nicole, as guests of the Joint Session.
